

NO SURVIVORS ARE FOUND IN SHAFTS

ALL MINERS IN THE BRICEVILLE MET THEIR DEATH INSTANTLY.

GAS WAS MOST DEADLY

Those Not Killed By Explosion Died From Effects of the Gas Which Filled Entire Workings.

Briceville, Tenn., Dec. 11.—It is now certain that none of the miners at work in the ill-fated mine Saturday escaped with their lives. The rescuers have now reached almost the end of the shaft and are bringing out the bodies.

At Telephone. Charles Kesterson, whose body was among the first discovered was found by the rescuers at the telephone back in the mine.

Evidently Kesterson had been trying to telephone news of the blast to the office of the mine when he was struck by falling debris. His skull was crushed and his body cut.

Found Sitting. Discovery of the first body this morning came at 10 when a dead miner was found in a sitting posture in one of the interior chambers. He was Andrew Johnson.

It is believed now that many men who might have escaped the fury of the explosion were suffocated by gases. A local red cross camp began work for the relief of the suffering this forenoon.

Many Widows. It is estimated the explosion rendered 60 women widows, and made 284 children orphans.

Continue Rescue Work. With sixteen bodies recovered and identified rescue parties today renewed their efforts to force the big Cross Mountain mine here to give up its dead. Having forced their way through the mine they entered and entered most of the Cross entrance members of the rescue crew expect to stumble out to most of the corpses thrown chambers at any hour.

Hundred More Dead. That there are 100 or more dead men remaining in the mine there is no doubt. All hope of rescuing any of the scores who went to their toll Saturday morning has been abandoned.

The discovery very late last night of eight more bodies prompted crowds to gather at the death cavern early this morning. Weeping wives made widows by Saturday's death blast in the Knoxville Iron Company's mine came to the shaft entrance this morning.

Coffins Are Ready. In a warehouse just a short step from the mine entrance are great numbers of coffins waiting for the occupants.

Of the eight corpses discovered last night three were sitting bolt upright in a mine car while the bodies of five others were lying on the ground. Their death came by explosion of dust.

ESCAPING CURRENT SETS TREE ON FIRE

Fire Department Called to Corner of Ravine and North Academy Streets Last Night to Extinguish Blaze.

Large flames in the branches of a tree at the corner of Ravine and North Academy streets, caused by the short-circuiting of the electric service wire which fell across it as it broke resulted in a fire alarm being sent in last night from box sixteen. By the time the fire department arrived the current had been turned off and only a few embers remained to show where the fire had been. The tree stood near a house and it was feared that the flames would be communicated to it. John Quinn mended the broken wire and put the line in shape.

BASEBALL LEADERS MEET IN NEW YORK

National and American Leagues, National Commission and Other Organizations in Session.

New York, Dec. 11.—Some interesting reading for the baseball fans is expected to be furnished by the series of meetings which began here today and will occupy the greater part of this week. In addition to the annual meetings of the National and American leagues, there will be meetings of the National Commission, the National Board of Arbitration, the Eastern League and the Baseball Writers' Association.

The American league assembled today to wind up the business of the past season and discuss preliminary plans for the coming year. The season of 1911 was a very successful one for the league and no serious business occurred to disturb the harmony among the managers. The meeting was little more than a love feast.

Livelihood proceedings are promised tomorrow when the National League meets in annual session. The recent death of President Russell of the Boston club has caused a revival of the talk of "syndicate baseball" and Barney Dreyfuss, of Pittsburgh, who has led the fight against the so-called syndicates, will probably bring the matter to the attention of the directors. Rumors are still current that an attempt will be made to oust Thomas L. Lynch from the presidency of the league, but those in a position to know declared today that while the meeting might develop some surprises, the "passing of Lynch" certainly would not be among them.

The special meeting of the National Commission, the supreme governing body in the baseball world, will transact considerable business left over from the recent Cincinnati meeting. It is considered doubtful, however, if the Commission will devote much serious attention to the charges of collusion between scoundrels and officials of the New York Club in the sale of tickets for the world's series last fall. The majority of the managers are now inclined to let the matter drop, though all are in favor of adopting some plan that will prevent a repetition of the scandal in the future.

The Eastern league also seems to have its troubles, which are due to have an airing at the league's annual meeting. Owner Chapin of the Rochester club has come to town with the news of intention of returning home with the scalp of President Ed Harrow slung at his belt. Chapin has a number of grievances against Harrow, but as most of them are of little concern to the other club owners the probability is that Harrow will be returned to the presidency for another year.

Chicago Convention Attended by Foremost Commercial and Industrial Leaders of the Nation.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 11.—Many of the foremost business men of the nation were assembled in the gold room of the Congress hotel today at the opening of the three days' conference called by the National Business League of America. In his opening address President George W. Sheldon explained the purpose of the gathering to be "for the consideration of important measures for the general welfare." The speaker further expressed the hope that the conference would aid in determining what all the business of the country and what remedial legislation should be asked of congress.

During the three days of the conference speeches will be delivered that will command the attention of the nation, not only because of their commercial and political significance, but because of the prominence of the men who will make them. Among the scheduled speakers are John Kirby, Jr., president of the National Association of Manufacturers; Frederick A. Delano, president of the Continental and Commercial National bank of Chicago; Robert W. Bonyne, member of the National Monetary Commission, and Frederick Townsend Martin of New York.

Resolutions will be adopted urging upon congress the necessity from a business point of view of early legislative action dealing with currency reform, questions of transportation, the promotion of American foreign commerce, and the creation of an American merchant marine.

Will Start Organization in Northern Counties. Madison, Wis., Dec. 11.—Right after the holidays Speaker Charles A. Ingram of the Wisconsin assembly will be sent into Northern Illinois to assist in organizing those counties for the Progressive Republican committee. Mr. Ingram conferred with the managers of the Chicago office Saturday evening and stopped off here enroute to his home in Durand.

Speaker Ingram said that the political situation viewed from the Chicago office is highly encouraging to the ultimate success of the Progressive movement. Reports are being received, he said, from all parts of Illinois and the committee has found it necessary to furnish speakers and organizers for different counties. Much of the preliminary work has already been done, he said, but a more concentrated effort to unify the formative work in the counties will be started as soon as the holiday season is over.

Pressed as to whether he would be a candidate for congress in the Tenth district, Mr. Ingram said he has as yet come to no decision. He admitted, however, that there is a possibility that he will enter the race, but he believed that an announcement of his plans just now would be premature.

MYSTERIOUS ESCAPE OF JUROR IN HYDE CASE STOPS TRIAL

Harry Waldron Breaks From Hotel Room and Eludes Guards—Undone of Work of Weeks in Murder Trial.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 11.—Probably undoing the work of weeks of court proceedings and bringing to a standstill the second trial of Dr. B. Clark Hyde charged with murder of Col. Thomas H. Swager, Harry Waldron, a juror in the case broke out of his room in a hotel early today eluding two officers who were guarding the jurors.

The first hint of the juror's escape came when the officers found the transom torn away from the door of the room Waldron had occupied. A force of deputies was sent at once in pursuit.

Prosecutor Conclink said the state would start an investigation to determine whether Waldron had been induced to escape. Attorney Walsh for the defense said he would ask that Hyde be appointed to take charge of the jury until Waldron could be found.

Asked as to whether the matter would result in a mistrial, Judge Porterfield said it would depend on Waldron's course during his period of liberty should he be captured.

FEDERAL CONTROL OF RAILWAY SECURITIES DEEMED IMPOSSIBLE

RAILROAD SECURITIES COMMISSION MAKES REPORT TO CONGRESS TODAY.

PUBLICITY AS REMEDY

Best Method Government Has to Prevent Stock Watering and Other Evils—Recommendations Federal Incorporation Act.

Washington, Dec. 11.—The Railroad Securities Commission, headed by President Arthur T. Hadley, of Yale, has reported that it would be practically impossible at this time to place issues of railroad securities under Federal control. The commission recommends that enforced publicity for all railroad financing is the most effective weapon against stock watering which the government has at its command.

A group of distinguished investigators was named by President Taft to co-operate with Professor Hadley. They were: Judson of St. Louis, Straus of New York, Walter Fisher, Secretary of the Interior, and Baltasar H. Meyers, member of the Interstate commerce commission.

The commission was created in 1910, when the senate refused to accept a house amendment to the pending railroad bill, providing that all future issues of stocks and bonds be placed under control of the interstate commerce commission. Many of the senate democrats opposed it as an invasion of states' rights. President Taft, at the time told republican leaders the party was committed to such a measure, but when it appeared impossible to pass it, the president agreed to have the clause eliminated, with the understanding that a commission to study the subject would be allowed.

This was done and the commission began work in the autumn of 1910. Chairman Hadley, studied the problem abroad.

Distinctly Adverse. The commission's report is distinctly adverse to the legislation proposed in the railroad bill.

President Taft, in transmitting the report to Congress today, declared that he heartily concurred in the recommendations. The commission's principal conclusions are:

That any attempt by Congress to adopt the policy of Federal regulation to the exclusion of state regulation, would be premature.

That the present state authorities should make concerted effort to harmonize existing requirements.

That Congress should prepare for the future by giving consideration to a Federal incorporation act which would permit interstate railroads to exchange their state charters for national ones.

Add to Complexity. The commission takes the ground that constitutional questions involving the scope and extent of Federal authority are unsettled and will remain so for some time; and that while such a condition exists, to superimpose Federal regulation upon state regulation would add to the conflicts and complexities, which in the public interest, should rather be diminished than increased.

Unless the constitutional power of Congress to regulate securities of interstate railroads is definitely established as being exclusive of state control; either the Federal government and the states will come to a general understanding as to the principle to be adopted in the control of security issues, or the railroad systems will be given the opportunity to exchange their state charters for Federal ones, says the report.

Publicity Is Advised. "Until such exclusive jurisdiction can be established, the creation of a separate administrative body, subjecting the railroads to a new system of concurrent supervision, in addition to the many old ones which now exist does not seem just, expedient or economical."

For the present, the commission recommends that complete publicity be required to surround all issues of securities and that any interstate railroad issuing stocks and bonds be required to furnish the Interstate Commerce Commission a full statement of the details of the issue, the purpose for which the proceeds are to be used, and an accounting for the expenditures of such proceeds.

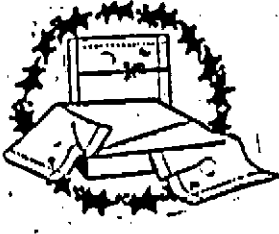

Accurate Knowledge. "Accurate knowledge of the facts surrounding the issue of securities, and the expenditure of the proceeds is the matter of most importance," the commission says. "It is the one thing upon which the Federal government can effectively insist today; it is the fundamental thing which must serve as a basis for whatever regulation may be desirable in the future."

"If full publicity be given we shall soon have the fraudulent creation of debt. It is the degree of publicity rather than the stringency of the law which gives to the people any real protection. A stringent law inadequately enforced and secretly evaded is the worst thing that can be possibly offered to the public, because it gives color to claims which have no foundation and fact."

In determining the physical value of railroads in relation to their securities now outstanding, the commission puts faith as entirely out of the question any attempt to scale down outstanding securities on the ground that constitutional difficulties, public expediency, and confidence in American railroad investments would forbid it.

Talks to Girls. Dr. Maud Williams will give an address to girls at the City Hall this evening. Young ladies over sixteen years of age are asked to be present.

WEATHER THIS WEEK TO BE UNFAVORABLE

During Period Up to 20th All Kinds of December Weather is Predicted by W. T. Foster.

(Copyrighted 1911, by W. T. Foster.) The last bulletin gave the forecast of disturbances to cross the continent Dec. 11 to 15, warm wave 10 to 14, cool wave 13 to 17. This will cause temperatures to average above the average of this month and the storm wave will be of greater than usual force. Not much rain or snow.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about Dec. 16, cross Pacific slope by close of 17, great central valleys 18 to 20, eastern sections 21. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about Dec. 16, great central valleys 18, eastern sections 20. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about Dec. 19, great central valleys 21, eastern sections 23.

Radical Weather Coming. This will be very much like the preceding disturbance except the cool wave for this last storm wave will be a cold wave and the precipitation will be greater than for the preceding. In northern sections the cold wave will be somewhat of a blizzard and considerable snow may be expected. Dec. 12 to 20 will bring radical weather. During that period about all kinds of weather, known to the December calendar, may be expected. That will not be a good time for outdoor affairs. The week centering on Dec. 22 will be cold but better for Christmas preparations than will be the week centering on Dec. 16.

Some errors occurred in the November forecasts but as a whole, they were good. I am able to promise, with confidence, a surprise for the best friends of my weather work. Improvements have been made all along but very slowly. The work has been immensely tedious. But we are in sight of such perfection as will silence the tongues of our critics and establish the very best friends of our weather work.

Unfavorable for Christmas. Probabilities seem to suggest unfavorable weather for the great central valleys in the states for Christmas. Probably the storm will have passed the central valleys of Canada before Christmas. But at least an unusual amount of cloudy and threatening weather is promised about Christmas times from the central parts of great central valleys eastward.

The United States Weather Bureau has placed one of its seven-foot glass outline weather maps in the Union Depot at Washington. This map is similar to the one in the Chicago board of trade. Every morning a weather bureau expert goes to the maps and records on them with crayons the weather conditions for the states and Canada. That is a capital idea and those maps are the best ever; they surely give the present conditions of the weather in excellent form, but if you want to know about future weather read Foster's weekly weather bulletins and monthly weather charts. We could not do without the United States weather bureau; it makes excellent records of what the weather has been and we must have those records in order to forecast coming weather events.

Long Range Forecasts. The Bard bill, introduced in congress some years ago, proposed to devote $100,000 to whatever discovers the changes of our weather changes, and nature's system of long range weather forecasts of a valuable standard. Of course Chief Moore opposed the bill. The chief of the Austrian weather bureau wrote a letter opposing the bill and saying that, "No being, except God Almighty, could comply with the terms of the bill." I had something to do with formulating the bill and will say that whoever complies with its terms will be the greatest benefactor of the human race the world has ever produced. To do so is my ambition and I believe the goal will be reached during 1912, after thirty-six years of intense study. I am still advising the farmer and planter that this is not a good time to sell grain and cotton. I might be mistaken but my calculations of future weather indicate that this is a good time to wait. Better go hunting than go to market.

HIGH SCHOOL LEARNS ABOUT NEGRO SCHOOL

Representative of Southern Institution Talks to Students About Work For Negroes in The South.

This morning at the opening exercises of the local high school, Mr. Boone, a representative of one of the largest negro schools in the South is situated in the Black Belt, addressed the students in his opening remarks. Mr. Boone spoke of the wonders of this age, its educational institutions, its inventions, its possibilities, and its problems, the greatest of which was that concerning the education and enlightenment of the negro in America. Of the many theories advanced for its solution none have proved of any importance except the one expounded by the Christian institutions. Give the negro education and religion and time will work the change.

Following out this idea, the school which he represented was founded thirteen years ago and today has an enrollment of 380 students who are being prepared to take up work for the uplift of their fellow negroes in the South or to go to Africa as missionaries there. Trades are taught as well as the other requisites for such work and they are at graduation well fitted for life in this country.

In the county in which the school is located there is only a small fraction of the population white and the thousands of negroes there include between four and five thousand boys and girls between the ages of 5 and 14 who have never attended any educational institution of any character. This is an example of the conditions existing in the country as a whole where we have ten million negroes to educate and help rise from their present level.

OBITUARY.

Albery Leroy Cullen. Albert Leroy Cullen, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Cullen of Chicago, died yesterday morning, aged one year. The remains will be brought to this city tomorrow morning and laid at rest in the family lot in the local cemetery.

Frank Gray. Frank Gray died at his home in Long Beach, California, December 4th, after a brief illness resulting from a cold. Mr. Gray was 79 years old. He came to Janesville as one of the pioneers and for many years was engaged in the grain business. Ten years ago he went to California where he found his second wife, and where he has since resided.

Mr. Gray represented the highest type of a Christian gentleman. Scrupulously honest, genial in character, he won a host of friends in the city which was so long his home. His death will come to them as a personal loss. He was a consistent and faithful member of the Congregational church, and next to his home he cherished the fellowship of friends and close associates in the church of his choice.

There are some men who are so fortunate as to go through life without an enemy, and Mr. Gray belonged to this class. Mrs. in his convictions of right, yet charitable to all mankind, he won the respect and love of all who knew him. A good man has passed on, but the world is better because he journeyed through it. Besides a wife he leaves to mourn two daughters, Mrs. Roberts of Fond du Lac, and Mrs. C. H. Johnson of Long Beach. The remains were taken to Los Angeles for cremation.

Miss Mary Pankhurst. Funeral services for the late Miss Mary Emma Pankhurst were held at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon from the home of her sister, Mrs. P. P. Smiley, 812 Court street. The Rev. Joshua Reynolds read the service and the remains were taken to the Grove cemetery in the town of Center for interment. The pallbearers were her three brothers and brother-in-law, William, George, and Ephraim Pankhurst, and F. P. Smiley. There were many at the funeral and floral tributes were numerous.

Mrs. J. V. Stevens. The last rites for Mrs. Stevens, wife of Dr. J. V. Stevens, were conducted at 10:30 o'clock this morning from the home, 917 Milton avenue, the officiating clergyman being the Rev. T. D. Williams and the Rev. Joshua Reynolds. The remains of the deceased were taken to Jefferson on the Northwestern train which left at 12:55, and interment was made in the cemetery there. They were accompanied by the immediate relatives and the Rev. Williams. The pallbearers were Eugene T. Mah, John Lloyd, William Hoyer, S. I. Hutchins, John Peters and C. E. Curtis.

CASCARET INSURE INSIDE CLEANLINESS

The Millions of Cascaret Users Never Have Headache, Constipation, Bilioussness or Sick Stomach.

It is more necessary that you keep your bowels, liver and stomach clean, pure and fresh than it is to keep the sewers and drainage of a large city free from obstruction. Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passage every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil. This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, indigestible and fermenting food and foul gases take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system the decomposed waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels. No odds how badly and upset you feel, a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

Guard around the home, has been increased. The fears for herself are entirely secondary however to the constant danger of her stalwart young husband who has on his shoulders perhaps one of the most gigantic responsibilities ever assumed by any man of his years in recent times and who is confronted by problems which are international. It has been discovered that no less than three covetous plots were frustrated to kill him.

Expenditure Explained. Question—Don't you know that the amount charged you for postage by your campaign manager would buy enough stamps to paper the side of the great pyramid? The Answer—My George! Is that what he did with them?—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

May Be Origin of "23." Telegraphers have a yarn to the effect that "way back '23" was used for a death message, but veterans of the key do not recall the employment of numerals.

Derivation of "Poster." Posters took their name from the fact that in former times the footways of London streets were separated from the drives by a line of posts, on which advertisements were displayed.

EXPERIMENT DETERMINES AVAILABILITY OF 12-INCH MORTAR FOR AIRSHIP DEFENSE.

New York City.—Sandy Hook has had some interesting experiments in modern aerial warfare the past few days, and our soldiers have been knocking down baby war balloons. The Sandy Hook practice was not done with long-distance rifles either, but with the 12-inch mortars such as are hidden in pits up and down the coast of this country. The mortars are not new, but the fact that they can be utilized for aerial warfare is. Officers began the experiments a week ago in a special shell filled with shrapnel and which, after it explodes, carries destruction to a wide area, was used. Small balloons flying and others held by ropes were used to represent the enemy of the air. A distance of from 200 to 1,000 feet in the air they floated. Then the mortar batteries were fired and the balloons dropped into the ocean a mass of shrapnel cloth.

About the Putterer.

The art of puttering consists of doing for yourself slowly and inefficiently what you can pay some one else to do for you quickly and well. It is hard-work that you do not have to do, strenuous loading that invites the soul.

The putterer works in pure love, and if he produces a poor thing it is at least his own. To be a perfect putterer is to achieve a liberal education.

Puttering is a tonic relaxation from the mechanical efficiency of our professional selves, a corrective of the extreme specialization that otherwise would result in our becoming all foot or hand or head. The putterer makes laws and breaks laws and breaks the laws he makes. He produces startling variations from type. An inspired fool, he is a true creator.—From the Atlantic.

INSTITUTE IS NOT LARGE ENOUGH

UNITED DOCTORS HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO EXAMINE ALL CALLERS.

WILL LEASE MORE SPACE.

ADDITIONAL SPECIALISTS FROM THE EAST WILL COME TO INSTITUTE.

Never before in the history of Janesville or any other city in the west has there been such a continual crowd of patients visiting any medical institute as that which has been thronging the waiting rooms of the United Doctors on the fourth floor of the Hayes building, corner of Milwaukee and Main street. So great was the crowd that special arrangements have had to be made to keep the elevator running after its usual hours.

The world is not large and in these days of daily newspapers and rapid transit, it does not take long for news to travel over the country, and news of the wonderful cures that have been made by the United Doctors in their institutes in the various parts of the country has spread all over Wisconsin with the result that as soon as the Janesville Institute opened there was a crowd of patients waiting for treatment. In fact the crowd of waiting patients has been so great that the physicians in charge of the institute have not been able to see a great many who called for treatment. As a result of this condition, it has become necessary to secure more room. While the United Doctors already occupy considerable space in the Hayes building, they will lease more space and open two more consultation rooms. Other members of the United Doctors' syndicate from the East and with this addition to the Janesville staff, and the enlarged office space, it is hoped by the United Doctors they will be able to examine and treat all who call.

That this scientific treatment will cure disease even after ordinary methods of treatment have failed is being demonstrated in scores of cases daily in other United Doctors' institutes as the ones they have in Racine and Eau Claire in this state. Some were cured of stomach trouble, some of rheumatism, some of kidney trouble and various other chronic ailments.

Anyone suffering from any nervous or blood trouble or other chronic disease could not do better than to call at the Institute of the United Doctors, and take advantage of the grand offer of free examination and consultation by these expert medical specialists. The only charge that they make for treating a patient who calls before December 20th is simply bare cost of the medicines used on the case. After that date full fees will be charged to new callers.

The United Doctors are here to stay. They maintain only permanent institutes and no doubt in a short time they will be as well and favorably known here as other places where they have institutes.

Smoking in the Dark.

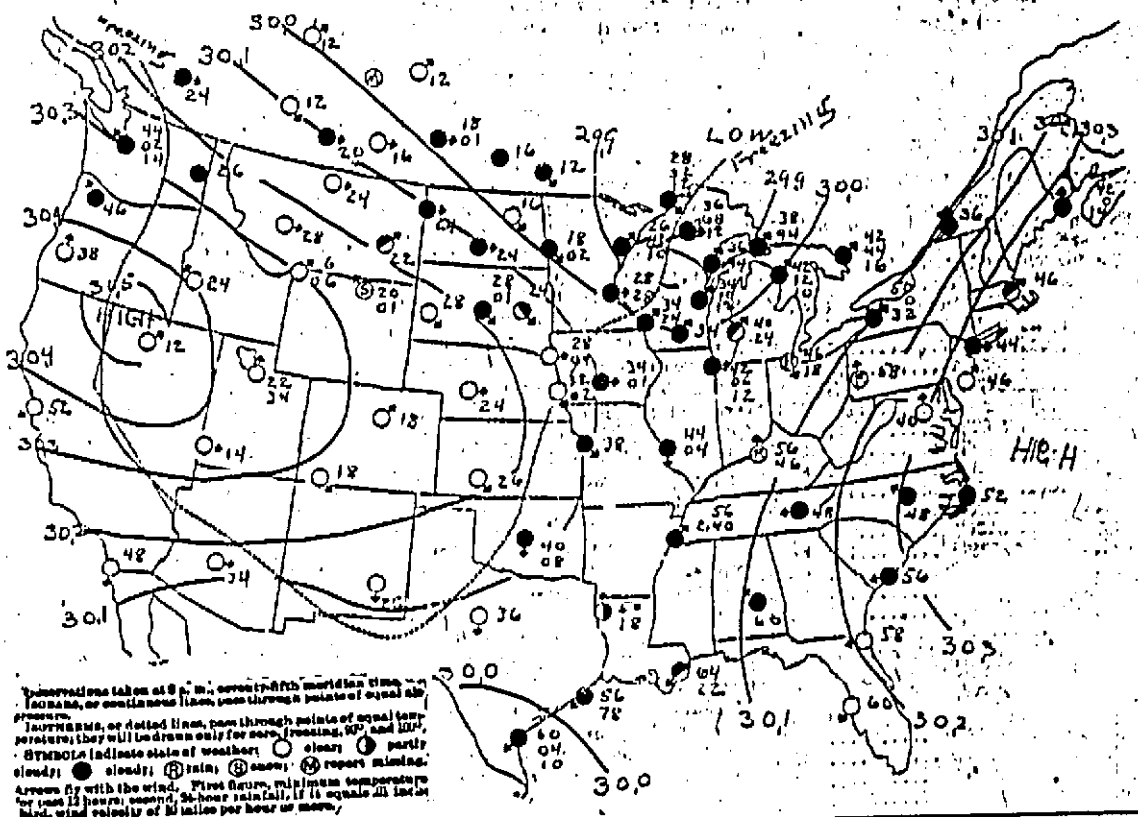

According to experts in the tobacco business the prevailing impression that a man cannot enjoy a smoke in the dark is erroneous. It all depends on the cigar. According to the best authority, slight plays no part in the enjoyment of a smoke, and it is pointed out that blind men are most inveterate smokers; in fact, blind men are expert in telling a good cigar from a poor one, as their sense of smell is so well developed. A New York cigar dealer says that one of his best customers is a blind man and he can tell a good cigar from a bad one by his sense of smell, even when standing a yard or more from his counter.

Most smokers do not like to smoke in the dark. They say it is necessary to watch the smoke ascend and to see the rings curl in order to thoroughly enjoy it, but cigar dealers say the enjoyment is really in the taste and not in the odor, and the sense of taste needs no light to make smoking enjoyable.

Bad Both Ways.

"A man should not see an election to the senate with a view to making money," "No," replied Senator Borah, "and; on the other hand, he'll be criticised just the same if he accumulates money with a view to getting into the senate."

CUPID FOUND IN SCIENTIST'S LABORATORY.

Paris.—The passionate love of one scientist for another has, in the case of Mme. Curie who, with her husband, discovered radium, led to no end of gossip. Mme. Curie has been honored with the Nobel prize of $100,000 and with nearly every decoration it is possible for scientists to have bestowed upon them. It has just been published for the first time that Mme. Curie had Professor Langevin as an alleged lover involved in a Parisian romance, evidence of which is given in hitherto unpublished love letters exchanged between the two. Owing to the international importance of both people, the whole affair is being hushed up.

Pieces for Quilt.

I have found the following method of cutting pieces for a quilt to be a saving of time and labor, says a contributor to Needlecraft. Have the pattern cut from cardboard and a piece of beeswax pressed on each corner; then press the bit of cloth to the pattern, cut it out, remove it, and you are ready for the next without the trouble of putting in and taking out pins.

Callisthenics.

"Those Latin races use a great many gestures when they talk," "Yes," replied the busy man; "and it's a mighty good idea. It enables you to take your physical culture right along with your ordinary exercise."

Appreciation.

If courtesy were expensive more people might be inclined to regard it as a good thing.

The Modern Idea.

"What did your friend say after the study class took up Dante's Inferno?" "She remarked that it was a pity when Dante made his celebrated visit to the infernal regions that picture post cards had not been invented."

Now Is the Opportune Time

Last week one of my lady patients said to me:
"Dr. Richards, I want just the nicest set of teeth you can make me."
"This is to be my Christmas present, and I long have wanted them."
"What a thoughtful act on the part of the donor."

A set of teeth is said to prolong the life on the average about five years. Who is the next man who wants to really do a benefit to his faithful wife, mother, or sister?

I can make them all complete in less than a week's time.

WILLIAM N. TRAVIS HAS CLOSE ESCAPE FROM ASPHYXIATION

William N. Travis, Residing at 308
Dodge Street, Rescued After Inhaling Fumes for Several Hours.

A partially opened window and the timely discovery of his danger by members of his family was all that saved William N. Travis, residing at 308 Dodge Street, from asphyxiation last night. Mr. Travis, who is an invalid and suffers severely from asthma, a second story sleep down stairs. At about two o'clock his daughter, Miss Mabel Travis, detected the odor of gas and examined all the jets downstairs but found them turned off, so the source of the fumes was attributed to a small leak through imperfect or worn valves.

About three quarters of an hour later another daughter heard her father groaning and with other members of the family rushed to his room where they found him lying unconscious. The chamber was filled with the poisonous fumes and the gas jet was partially opened. The window was open a few inches at the top and a kerosene lamp burned on a table near it.

The sons of Mr. Travis immediately carried him downstairs, gave him fresh air and called Dr. G. C. Wandell. The latter gave the patient with other treatment a hypodermic injection and he regained partial consciousness in a comparatively short time. He was very much weakened by his dangerous experience and was suffering from severe headache this morning.

The manner in which the gas jet was turned on was accounted for by Mr. Travis after he had sufficiently recovered consciousness. He retired at about ten thirty o'clock last night and recollects turning his head hard against the gas jet. His severe asthma prevented him from detecting the odor of the escaping gas and he dropped asleep without discovering his danger. Mr. Travis has been an invalid for six years and unable to work.

JURY FINDS THOMAS FERRELL NOT GUILTY

After Being Out For An Hour And A Half Verdict Is Given In Favor of the Defendant.

After being out for more than an hour and a half, the jury drawn in the case of the State versus Thomas Ferrell of the town of Janesville, charged with a serious offense, brought in a verdict of "not guilty." The final theory was entered, the last of the witnesses cross-examined and the arguments of opposing counsel heard last Saturday, but Judge Fife did not deliver his instructions to the jury until ten o'clock this morning and the latter retired to the jury room about half an hour later.

In charging the jury Judge Fife cautioned them that in order to convict the defendant of the offense charged they must be convinced of his guilt beyond a reasonable doubt, that such a doubt must be based on the evidence presented, and that the motive of these bringing the action should have no bearing upon their decision. The attorneys for the state were District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie, and Otto A. Gostertreich; for defense, J. J. Cunningham.

SAVE THE CRYSTAL PALACE

Threatened Sale at Auction of Historic Building Arouses People of English Capital.

"London.—Shall the 'Crystal' Palace be saved to the people of Britain, or shall the wonderful building now gracing the heights of Sydenham be removed to make room for the villas which are spreading around London like a network? This is a question uppermost in the public mind today. Whatever the issue may be, certain it is that the historic structure will not be lost to the public without a struggle.

The lord mayor has convened a meeting to be held at the Mansion House of all bodies and individuals interested in the preservation of the building. At this meeting the probabilities are that the fate of the place will be settled. Should no feasible suggestion be made the place will be disposed of at auction next month.

The story of the Crystal Palace is one of romance, and is most intimately connected with the life of Queen Victoria. Erected first in Hyde Park for the great exhibition of 1851, it was in 1854 removed to its present site on Sydenham slope and was opened by the queen with great pomp and ceremony in that year.

It soon became a national institution of which every Briton was proud, and the story of its splendor spread to all parts of the world. When it was partly destroyed by fire in 1896, the late King Edward, then Prince of Wales, led the movement for raising the funds necessary for the reconstruction of the building.

TWO SACKS OF MAIL STOLEN FROM DEPOT SATURDAY EVENING

Taken From Trucks at Northwestern
Station—Filled With Second Class Matter—Both Found.

Two sacks of second class United States mail were stolen from trucks at the Northwestern passenger station Saturday night. A search for the missing sacks was instituted as soon as the theft was discovered; one was found near the viaduct later in the evening, and the other in the railway yards outside the city limits. The papers and packages which they contained were scattered all about and it is not known whether anything of value was taken. Both sacks were large and heavy, one so heavy that one man could not carry it alone, so it is supposed that two men are implicated in the robbery.

THREE GUNS STOLEN AT MILTON JUNCTION

Burglar Broke Into Home of John
Sykes Early Yesterday Morning, And Escaped With Weapons.

Three guns, a thirty-five calibre automatic rifle, a twenty-two calibre special, and a sixteen gauge pump shotgun were stolen from the home of John Sykes at Milton Junction between twelve o'clock Saturday night and an early hour Sunday morning. Mr. Sykes was first made aware of the theft when on arising in the morning he found a window in the house broken. He heard no noise during the night. Chief of Police Appleby has been notified of the robbery and requested to keep on the lookout for the missing firearms.

Sheriff, Turnkey, and Local Police
Hunt Through Stock Train
For Sauk County
Prisoners.

Sheriff E. H. Hanson received a telephone message at eleven o'clock last night from the sheriff of Sauk county notifying him of the escape of two prisoners from the jail at Baraboo at about six o'clock that evening. They were thought to have boarded a stock train which passed through Janesville between eleven and twelve o'clock and Sheriff Hanson and his aids were requested to search it on its arrival here.

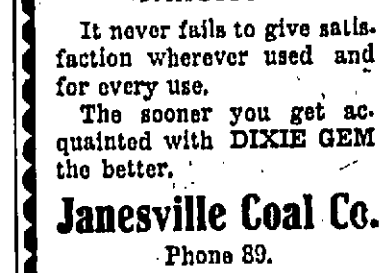

Sheriff Hanson who had already retired for the night, dressed hurriedly, summoned Turnkey Philo Kemp, and with the assistance of several of the night police made a thorough hunt for the escaped criminals but found no one.

There are many ways of doing this, of which perhaps the clearest is the following. We have seen that if our sun were placed where Sirius is now it would look only one thirty-third as bright as that star. Similarly we can compare its brightness with each one of the stars whose distance away from us is known. We find that while some of these stars are brighter and some fainter than our sun, yet on the whole they are considerably brighter. That is, the sun is fainter than the majority of stars whose brightness we know. I will regard this as evidence that the sun is below the average of all of those stars of a sort of typical sun, we can readily find just how far away from us it would have to be placed that it might appear as faint to us as the

NOTICE.

Today's issue of the Gazette contains the last 10 vote coupons to appear, and all must be in the ballot box Thursday, December 14th, or they will not be counted.

Every candidate in the Gazette automobile campaign is now alive to this great opportunity offered him of this state.

When automobiles, planes, diamonds, scholarships, watches and cash commissions are involved, attention of all is demanded. Consequently the whole of Rock County is now interested and awaiting the outcome of this great event.

December 23rd is now only two weeks off and it is up to each candidate to put forth her best efforts. Much can be accomplished in two weeks if properly utilized, but immediate action is conducive of good results.

Due to the coupon appearing from now until December 23rd, this is the most important period of the Gazette prize campaign. By a little extra effort enough votes may be secured to build up an impregnable reserve. Many candidates have given us assurance that they are going to work the next few days and work hard. Do not let your competitors get the subscriptions in your locality before you awake to this proposition.

REMEMBER. Each coupon to be counted must be accompanied by a separate subscription old or new. The subscription may be by carrier or by mail and each coupon will be worth twice as many votes as the subscription it accompanies, whether delivered by carrier boy or mail.

More votes will be issued in the next two weeks than all the previous weeks combined and it is up to you to see that you get your share.

AN UNCOMFORTABLE JOURNEY.

"The person who sits in a comfortable open chair and takes a pleasurable trip around the world with Lyman H. Howe, scarcely realizes how much danger and discomfort comes to those who make this entertainment possible," says the manager of the Lyman H. Howe Travel Festival Company, which will appear at the Myra Theater two nights and matinee, Dec. 29 and 30.

"Of course, the photographers who are constantly securing the earth in search of new and unusual subjects, assume the most risk," he explains, "but the members of the companies which present the entertainment to the public have their share of hard knocks also. The company which will numerous changes of train required and because there were no through sleepers, we had to remain awake all night. We had planned to secure lunch at several junction points where the original schedule called for waits of thirty minutes or longer, but on account of heavy storms and the rush of travel, all trains were late, and on arrival at the junction points we had only time enough to scramble from one train to another. We went nearly eighteen hours without food and twenty-two hours without restful sleep. On the last leg of the journey, somewhere between Jackson, Mich., and Grand Rapids, the train on which we were riding crashed with fatal results into a conveyance containing four persons who had been attending

As we neared our destination a huge electric sign was seen blaring out in letters of fire, 'Grand Rapids Hides You Wolves,' and this electric greeting caused our spirits to take a mighty bound up. As we realized that one of the worst trips in all our experience was at an end."

HOLLY SHORTAGE IS REPORTED FROM EAST

Decorations May Be Higher This Year in Local Markets—Eggs Expected to Drop Soon.

Reports came from Maryland and Carolina which are the principal places for the production of that holly will be short this year. This may also mean that there will be a raise in price. At present there is quite a good supply on the local markets and both trees and other decorations are plentiful.

This is glad tidings to many people and it is believed that potatoes would also go down there would be a celebration. Don't Tell the Whole Truth.
A woman preacher says that her sex is to blame for most of the divorces. One might go on further and state that if it were not for her sex there wouldn't be any divorces. Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Derivation of "Shenny."
The word "Shenny," as applied in an appropriate way to Iowa, is by some identified with the word "Chien," which is French for "dog." But others identify this word with "Shien," the initial letter in "Shenkin," which makes the original application of the term an honorable one.

TOBACCO MEN ENJOY FINE CASE WEATHER

Best Case Weather in Years Starts Rush of Stripping and Packing First Deliveries Soon.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Edgerton, Dec. 11.—The case weather of the past few days, although coming a month or six weeks sooner than usual, is pleasing to a multitude of tobacco growers in this section who had failed to take down their crop before this. The case weather never was better in many years and all those who took advantage of the first and second days will get the most satisfactory results. All remaining crops still in the shed are in too bad a state for hauling and the results are feared later on. At the present the demand for labor is at its height and good wages are being paid to experienced hands. While some few deliveries have been made in the local warehouses the movement will commence in real earnest by the middle of the week.

Discriminating Woman.

Lady theatrical managers seem to be peculiarly fortunate, or rather peculiarly clever at gauging the taste of the public. Possibly they are not so vain as the actor-manager, or they choose their plays with greater acumen, or they pay more attention to trifles and good management in small matters.—London Graphic.

Logic and Beauty.

A woman may not be logical when she undertakes to argue, but if she is only pretty enough, that doesn't make any earthly difference.—Somerville Journal.

London Good Oyster Market.

London is a great consumer of oysters. The cheapness of the delicacy half a century ago created a demand for it, which has hung with the appetites of the people as tenaciously as the habit of smoking a pipe has among the men. It is estimated that London consumes a billion a year, and the record shows that in 1861, when prices were very low, 700,000,000 were eaten.

To Fight for Billiard Championship. 182 Balc Line.

New York City, Nov.—After having dropped out of the running for the 182 ball line billiard championship for many months because of illness, George Sutton has again returned in a challenge match with Willie Hoppe, title holder on Tuesday night, Nov. 23, at Madison Square Garden, here. Sutton has held the title several times and is the one man Hoppe mostly fears.

For the last two months Sutton has played phenomenal billiards both at his farm in Michigan and in his practice games at his rooms in Chicago. Twice he averaged 125 in 500-point matches and his record breaking run of 442 indicates that he has regained his stroke. Hoppe, after winning the title on March 27, 1908 from Sutton whom he defeated 500 to 272, later returned the emblem to the donors. He came back into the championship fold in 1910 and defeated Harry Cline of Philadelphia, 500 to 394 at New York on May 26th averaging 17 2/3. Since then he has held it without challenge.

Sutton defeated Bloom in April, 1908 500 to 375 and then in turn defeated Hoppe 500 to 258, Morningstar 500 to 472, Schaefer 500 to 241 and Morningstar 500 to 300. This last match was played January 27, 1908 and on March 27th Sutton lost to Hoppe.

HEART AND HOME TALKS

The Gift The Christmas Season Brings Us.

SANTA CLAUS on the corner is ringing his bell for contributions to dinners for the poor. The street vendors on the sidewalk are shaking Christmas tree ornaments under our nose, and running little mechanical toys under our feet. The air is filled with the spice of evergreen and the bright cheerfulness of holly greets our eye on every side. It is all exhilarating, and we step along briskly and think that life is good.

We smile at the woman who tries to push the store door outward as we try to push it inward. We are patient with the salesgirl. We carry all our small packages with us. We refrain from scolding the grocer's boy when he forgets half our order. Good-nature and kindness beam from us. We have a benevolent feeling toward all the world.

We wouldn't do any of these things on a broiling hot day in August, nor even on a crisp, fine day in Autumn. We would probably glare at the woman who was in our way as we entered a shop. We might report the salesgirl who kept us waiting. We certainly would scold the grocer's boy for carelessness. Generally speaking, we wouldn't, all of us, be in the beatific humors we are in at present.

And it isn't because we are, on all sides admonished, to keep sunny, to carry small packages, and otherwise prodded to be good. These may have some effect; but at almost any other season, we would rather resent them. Nor is it altogether because the world generally is in fine good humor, and we have caught the spirit. It certainly isn't because we are thinking of the gifts we are going to receive. Rather, it is because we are dwelling on what we are going to give. The thought of making other people happy has made us happy. And even the crustiest, grumpiest individual, in time, thaws in this atmosphere of good-will, and begins to think of somebody he can give things to; and his heart warms at the thought.

So there is much more for us to get out of the Christmas season than the mere outward celebration of it. It has a precious gift for us which we do not always recognize. In the hurry and flurry, we think only of the material side of the observance. But its real gift is this joy of the spirit that comes from taking thought of others and little thought of self, from giving instead of receiving. Every year, this gift of the season comes to our spirit, hoping it may abide with us always. And very nearly every year, after the celebration is over, this gift is forgotten, and in the course of a few weeks or a few months, this spirit dies out of our hearts. We look at life as we did before its advent, and we wait until the Christmas season rolls around again, to feel once more at flood tide, this joy of giving, of thinking of others, of good-will and kindness toward all mankind.

Barbara Boyd.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE little mother had been searching diligently for a pair of gloves, which had cleverly secreted themselves in some out-of-the-way corner.

"She did not find them, but did bring forth my riding crop which had also been among the missing for some months."

"Well, that's the way it always is," she said as she restored the crop to its proper place. "When I look for one thing I find another."

"It is so, isn't it?"

You've had that experience yourself, haven't you, my friend? Perhaps you dropped a collar button under the chiffonier, and when in the course of your groveling, you found that little silver pin you thought you had lost for keeps.

Perhaps you were hunting through your desk for a receipted bill, when you stumbled upon that little snapshot of the baby which you had searched for so many times in vain.

And, of course, as you brought your treasure triumphantly forth to be congratulated upon, you uttered that good old bromide—"Whenever I look for one thing, I find another."

Now, did it ever occur to you that it's just the same about bigger things—about mental and moral qualities—that is when you are looking very hard for one thing, you often find another?

You don't see just what I mean? I don't blame you. Let me make it clearer by illustration.

Suppose you make up your mind that you are going to try with all your might to be popular. As like as not the very intensity of your desire frustrates you, so that you do not win popularity. And then, suppose you have a change of heart and decide that it is more desirable to be lovable than to be popular, and start out to seek unpopularity. And lo, by and by when you have quite forgotten about popularity, it is yours. In looking for one thing, you have found another.

Suppose again, your one ambition is to earn a great deal of money. Money is the greatest thing in life and you are going to have it willy nilly. And then you find that money is very hard to get and that it is unlovely. You will ever be a millionaire anyway, and you make up your mind to be content with doing just the best kind of work you know how. Who knows but that by and by you will find that the financial success is coming to you as a by-product of the greater gain. In looking for one thing, you have found another.

Do you remember how Lowell's Sir Launfal went searching all over the world for the Holy Grail and quite in vain? It was only when he gave up the search, and bent his energies toward loving his fellowmen, that he found the Grail.

Look for one thing, and you find another. Look for the big things that count, and the lesser blessings "shall be added unto thee."

Seek to be lovable, and you will probably be loved. Seek to be healthy, and you will probably gain at least a certain measure of beauty.

Seek to learn for your own satisfaction, and you will soon find yourself admired for your culture.

Again and again this rule works itself out. You don't believe it? Then try and see.

The Kitchen Cabinet

IF WOMEN ever get the vote which now they hope to gain, some day the White House may be swept by a presidential train.

MORE ABOUT BEANS.

There is no soup that goes to the spot and is more nourishing than a hot bean soup on a cold night. Even a tablespoonful of baked beans should never be wasted, as they add flavor and food value to any dish. In many homes of luxurious liveries, the bean soup is always served once a week in cold weather.

The following are a few good ones: Economical Soup.—Brown a tablespoonful of flour in a much butter. Add a quart of water and a cup of cold baked beans. Boil fifteen minutes, season with salt, pepper and a few drops of onion juice or a dash of mace. Serve hot.

A slice of lemon in the bottom of the soup dish, when serving bean soup, is liked by many.

Puree of Bean Soup.—Soak half a pound of beans eighteen hours. Cook until mushy; add a quarter of a can of tomatoes, one onion, fried brown in a bit of salt pork; salt, pepper and a grating of nutmeg. Cook together fifteen minutes, strain and reheat before serving.

Bean Soup.—Soak the beans over night, and in the morning pour off the water, replacing it with fresh water. Parboil until the skins slip off easily. Throw them into cool water and rub well. The skins will rise to the top and can be removed. Boil the beans until perfectly soft, allowing one quart of water to one pint of beans. Mash the beans and add flour, a tablespoonful, and the same amount of butter cooked together; add salt, pepper and peas; the beans through a sieve. Serve small pieces of toasted bread with the soup.

If one finds baked beans hard to digest, try rubbing off the skins before baking them.

Two Ways to View It.

Giles—Take two letters from "money" and "one" will be left.

Miles—Is that a joke?

Giles—Yes.

Miles—Well, I know of a fellow who took money from two letters, and it was no joke. He got twelve months in jail.

Where?

Artist—This is my painting, "Youth in the Moon Patch."

Critic—But where are the moons? Artist—What a foolish question!

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

THE OLD CAPITOL BUILDING.

By A. W. MACY.

The structure in Washington City known as the "Old Capitol Building" has a memorable history. It was erected in 1800, and was originally designed as a tavern, or boarding house. On account of poor management the tavern was closed after a few years. During the War of 1812 the British captured Washington and burned several of the public buildings, including the Capitol. The government then purchased this tavern building for the use of congress, and here both houses met for several years. Within its walls two presidents were inaugurated, and in it John C. Calhoun died. After the new Capitol building was completed the "Old Capitol" was abandoned by congress, and after that it was used for various purposes, hotel, boarding school, etc. In 1861 the government again took charge of it, and used it during the Civil war as a prison for captured southern soldiers.

ROASTED PEANUTS HARD TO DIGEST.

It is now admitted that the roasting of peanuts makes them particularly injurious. The editor of Good Health says: "Peanuts eaten raw, thoroughly chewed, are not particularly objectionable if relished. When peanuts are roasted they are usually more or less burned. The large amount of fat which they contain is itself decomposed, and irritating acids are produced. Roasted peanuts are very difficult of digestion. They are, in fact, fried in their own fat."

WALLACHIAN MOTIF FOR SHIRTWAIST.

This is an effective pattern for a shirtwaist and bands on a skirt. The Wallachian embroidery is a close buttonhole stitch which is started at the lower part of the leaf, and slanted slightly toward the upper and outside edge. The purple edge is brought to the outside of leaf or figure. The straight lines are done in the outline stitch. Mercerized cotton No. 18 should be used in white or colors.

THE USEFUL TAILORED SUIT.

Every season finds a widening field of usefulness for the tailored suit. So important a factor has it become, in my lady's wardrobe, that in a great number of cases it is almost indispensable.

A very plain suit of brown manish mixture which I remarked upon a smart young business woman had, as a novelty feature, a little vest of tan tailored broadcloth with brown pearl buttons. The short cut-away coat fastened low with its swaggar effect. This coat showed a bit more inclination towards semi-fitting lines, especially at the waist than any which we have been accustomed to for the past two seasons.

The skirt was simplicity itself, straight as to lines and clinging a bit around the feet. It was, perhaps, a trifle longer than walking skirts have been of late which is a feature of all suit skirts this winter.

With this suit went a soft rolling hat of imported velvet in a bright shade of brown trimmed with exquisite wings in deep natural iridescent browns and greens.

Nut Cake

Simply Delicious

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

In giving this recipe, Mrs. Hill believes it to be one of the best almond cake recipes it has been her good fortune to make. The simplicity and uniformly good results will appeal to every housewife.

K C Nut Cake

One-half cup butter; 1 1/2 cups granulated sugar; 3/4 cup milk; 2 cups flour; 2 level teaspoons K C Baking Powder; 1 cup of nut meats chopped fine; whites of 4 eggs, beaten dry.

Sift flour and baking powder together, three times. Cream the butter, add the sugar; then alternately, the milk and the flour mixture; lastly the whites of eggs and the nut meats. Bake in a sheet in a shallow pan thirty or forty minutes. When cold cover with the icing and decorate with whole nut meats. This is also an excellent white cake recipe when nuts are omitted.

Chocolate Icing

One cup granulated sugar; 1/2 ounce chocolate; white of 1 egg, beaten dry; 1/2 teaspoonful vanilla extract; 1/4 cup water.

Sift the sugar, chocolate and water until the mixture boils; cover and let boil three minutes. Uncover and let boil till when tested in cold water a soft ball may be formed; beat into the white of egg, then beat cold, add vanilla.

The nut caramel frosting given on page forty of the K C Cook's Book may be used in place of the chocolate frosting, if desired. A copy of the Cook's Book, liberally illustrated in 9 colors, will be mailed free, if you will send the colored certificate packed in 25-cent cans of K C Baking Powder to the Jacobs Bros. Co., Chicago.

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING.

Simple Cake Frostings With Variation in Color and Texture.

By Alice E. Whitaker

Frosting that cracks off in stony scales, when the cake is cut, is seldom used now, as the soft creamy kinds are quite within the ability of the average cook if she but half tries to make them. It is a false economy not to keep several kinds of sugar on hand and to undertake to make frosting with the wrong kind. Ornamental frosting is uncooked and not so milky and creamy as that made with a cooled syrup.

Frostings made from the foundation called fondant are the finest of all but the housewife can rarely spend time in making these and she looks for some short cut. However fondant can be bought at large confectioners if desired to have it without the trouble of making it at home, and for small or fancy cakes it is almost essential.

Expert cooks prefer a clear day to make boiled frosting which is now the standard kind. Cook one cup of sugar and one-third cup of water together until the mixture threads when tested by dipping a fork into the boiling syrup and holding it above to allow threads to spin downward. Do not stir after the sugar is melted.

Pour the syrup very slowly onto the beaten white of one egg beating all the time. Flavor with one-third teaspoon of vanilla. The usual error in making this frosting is to stop the boiling before the syrup threads sufficiently. If the time is cut short the mixture will not turn creamy and the frosting is spoiled because it cannot be boiled after the egg is added. It is safer to add the flavoring after the creamy stage is reached; adding it at first often prevents the changed to a white creamy consistency. Add a speck of color paste if tinted frosting is liked.

For an ornamental frosting, beat the whites of four eggs with two rounding tablespoons of confectioner's sugar for four minutes; add two more tablespoons of sugar and beat four minutes more. Repeat until two cups of sugar have been used, then add enough lemon juice to give a flavor and add more sugar until it is stiff enough to spread over the cake. After covering the cake add to the remainder enough more sugar to make a frosting stiff enough to keep its shape when pushed through the pastry tube. Fill the pastry bag and press the decorations over the plain frosting.

For chocolate boil one cup of sugar, one-half cup of water and a small pinch of cream of tartar until it threads, which will take from ten to fifteen minutes. Pour this syrup slowly on three squares of unwaxed chocolate that was melted in a dish set over hot water. Beat continuously until when cool enough to spread add one-half teaspoon of vanilla.

Two chocolate frostings are given that are more easily made. For the first melt one and one-half squares of chocolate in a dish set over hot water but not placed directly over heat. Add slowly one-third cup of hot milk, a few grains of salt, the unbeaten yolk of one egg, one-half teaspoon of melted butter and when well mixed add sufficient confectioner's sugar to make a mixture that will spread well. Beat until cool and flavor with one-half teaspoon of vanilla.

The second frosting is even more simple to make and is sufficient to cover the top of a cake. Melt one square of chocolate over hot water and two tablespoons of milk, four level tablespoons of granulated sugar and one-quarter teaspoon of butter, stir until smooth and spread at once over the cake.

When eggs are scarce make frosting with gelatine although it will not save quite as fine. Soak one level teaspoon of gelatine in one tablespoon of cold water for fifteen minutes. Add one-quarter cup of boiling water and stir until the gelatine is entirely dissolved. Add confectioner's sugar until the mixture will spread then flavor with a teaspoon of vanilla. For a variety add a little cocoa. In place of anything better, spread the very thin coating of jelly over the top of a layer cake, or one baked in a sheet and scatter finely chopped nuts over. It will be tastier on a cake that is to be eaten fresh.

"As Valuable as a Pigeon."

The peacock is not singular in his self-admiration. Pigeons are so notorious for the same vice that, I am told, illegal to put a looking-glass in a dovecot, as it would attract and retain the birds from the neighboring pigeon-houses.—George J. Murray, in London Spectator.

A BUDGET EXHIBIT.

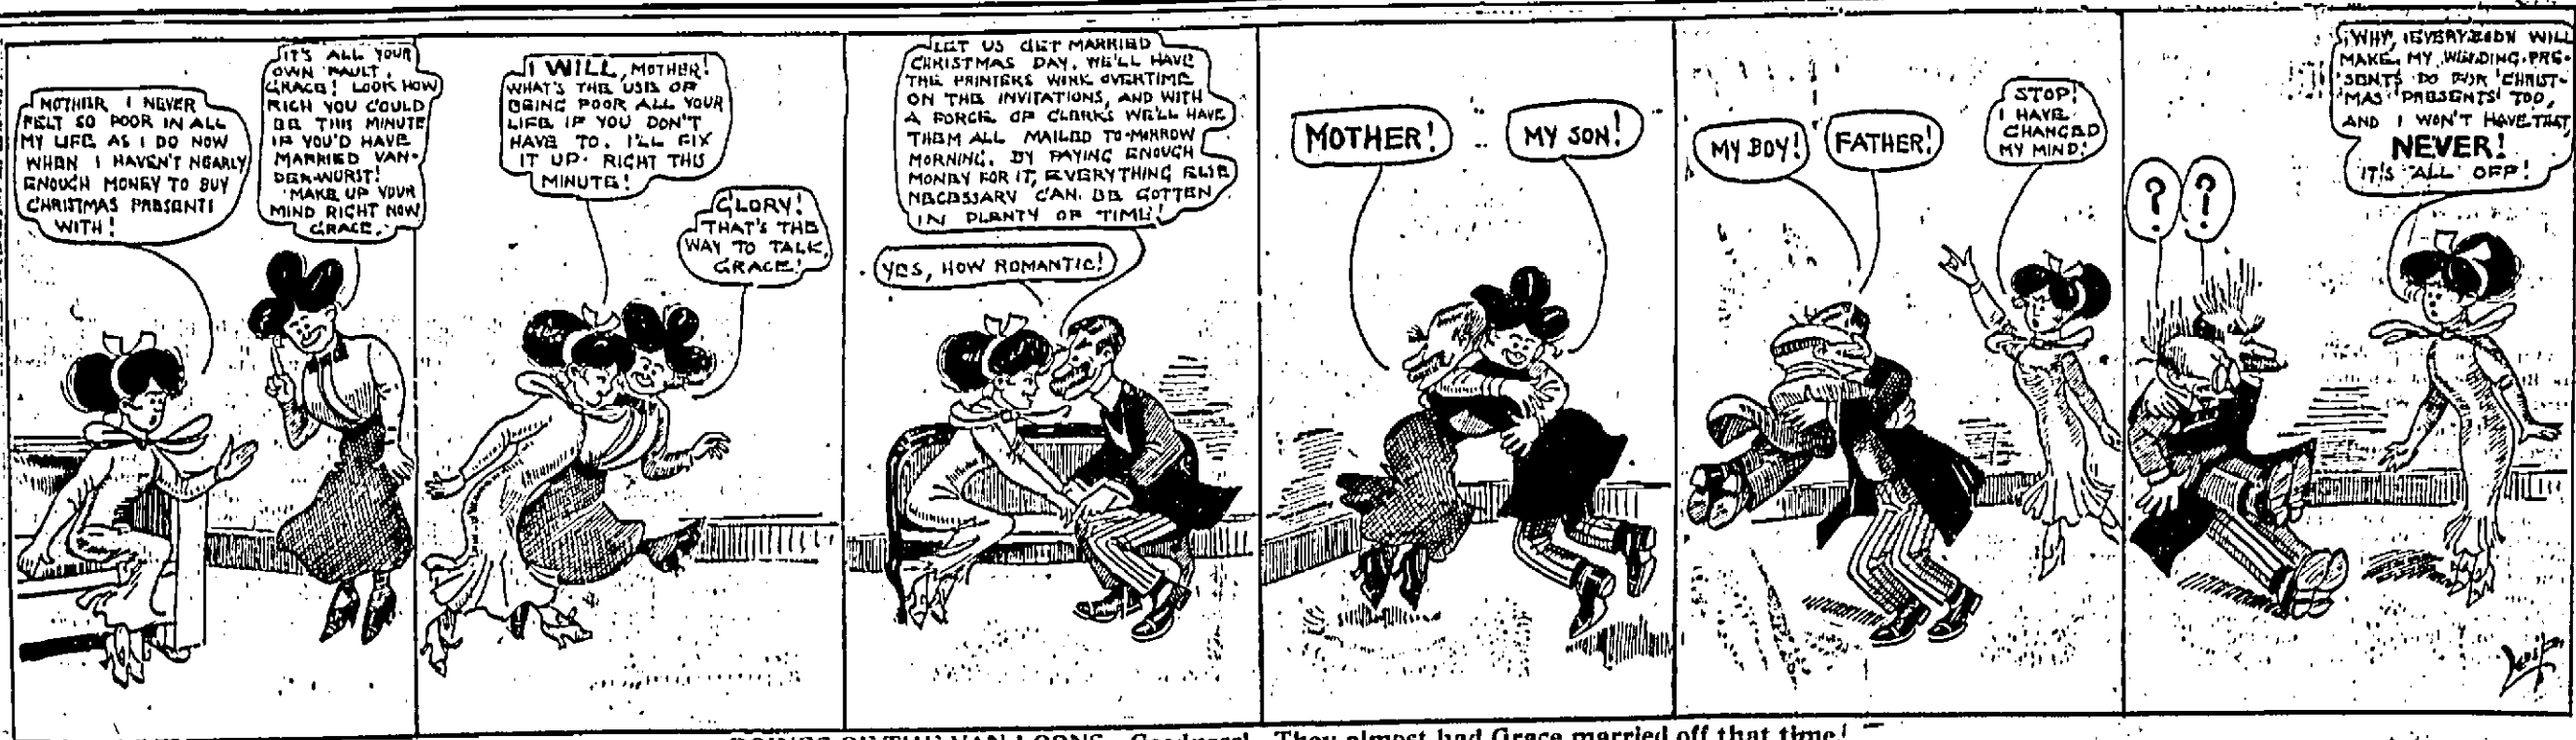

GOVERNMENT to the American citizen too often is a vague something to which he feels he owes patriotic allegiance, yet dreads to look into lest he find it corrupt. A city budget exhibit makes government real. It is a plan of representing by means of charts, models, pictures and lectures, the services rendered by the city to the public and tells the citizen that it is as though the goods were placed on the counter with the prices marked.

At the New York Exhibit women were present in large numbers examining with keen interest the exhibits of the Police Department, the Fire Department, the Sewerage Commission, the Tenement-house Department, the Health Department, the Department of Education, the Department of Public Charity and Corrections, and, come to think of it, why should not home-makers be interested in all the departments of city government? Crowds of school children were there, too, with their teachers, learning concrete lessons in civics. Ah, they will not grow up with dreamy ideals of government in which we gathered from studying the Constitution, learning nothing of its actual operation.

Does this exhibit each department takes its turn in the lecture hall. Many of the lectures are illustrated by moving pictures. All are largely attended by deeply interested audiences who learn specifically of food inspection, infant-milk stations, and of the varied opportunities, school and otherwise, that are open to the public.

Why should not every city have a budget exhibit? The wide-spread publicity will attract the attention of each city what is most progressive and valuable in other cities. It will create emulation, and it is the best kind of a lesson in democracy.

No More Constipation --WHEE!

It's Me for Olive Tablets!

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and Calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid liver.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing laxative.

No griping is the "joy-note" of these little sugar-coated tablets.

They cause the bowels and liver to act normal. They never force them to unnatural action, and liver activity for a time with calomel and castor oil, but the after effects are dangerous, and the real cause of the trouble is often not even touched.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are so easy to take that children do not regard them as "medicine" at all.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Olive Tablets at bedtime. They're perfectly harmless.

Thousands take one every night just to keep right. Try them.

"Every little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own."

The Kingdom of SLENDER SWORDS

by HALLIE ERMINE RIVES

Copyright, 1910, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

The homeward course took her through Aoyama, by unfrequented streets of pleasant, suburban-like gardens and small houses with roofs of stucco tiles as softly gray as silk. Here and there a bean curd peddler droned his cry of "Too-fu! Too-fu!" and under a spreading lily tree a blind beggar squatted, playing a flute through his nostrils, while his wife, also blind and with a beady-eyed baby strapped to her back, twanged a samisen beside him. In the road groups of little girls were playing games with much clapping of hands and shouting in shrill voices.

In one of the cross streets a dozen coolies strode, carrying flaming white banners printed in red ideographs. The last bore a huge paper-mache bottle, an advertisement of a popular brand of beer. A brass band of four pieces, discoursing hideously tuneless sounds, led them, and between band and banners stalked a grotesquely clad figure on stilts ten feet tall, the shafts pantalooned so that his legs seemed to have been drawn out like India rubber. The spidery pedestrian was followed by a score of staring children of all ages and sizes.

Suddenly Barbara rose to her feet in the carriage. She had seen a girl emerge from a small temple and turn into a side street.

"Fast! Drive fast, Taka!" she called quickly. "The street to the left!"

He obeyed, but a soba-ya had halted his shining copper cart of steaming buckwheat and momentarily delayed them.

The hastening figure was farther away when they rounded the turning. Barbara clasped her hands together.

"It was Harui! It was Harui! I am sure!" she whispered.

The girl slipped through a gateway hung with wisteria. As Barbara sprang to the ground she was hurrying through the garden.

"Harui!" But the flying figure did not seem to hear the call.

Barbara ran quickly after her along the gravel path.

In the house Austen Ware, standing with the kimono in his hand, had heard the rumble of carriage wheels. He had left the outer shoji open, and through the aperture he saw the slim form hastening toward the doorway.

An exclamation broke from his lips. Behind her, just entering the gate, was Barbara.

For a breath he stared. A cool, thrilling suspicion, one bred of his anger and humiliation that shamed his childhood, ran through him. Barbara there! Was it another rendezvous, then?

The force, self-dishonoring doubt merged into the mad jealousy that already burned him like a brand.

He dropped the kimono, drew back the shikiri of the unused apartment and stepped inside.

Swiftly and noiselessly the light partition slipped into place behind him.

Through the thin paper pane parted by his motioned anger Ware's hot, hollow eyes saw the Japanese girl come into the room. She had not waited to shut the shoji behind her. She drew quick sobbing-breaths, and her eyes had the desperate look of a hunted animal. She ran into the sleeping apartment and closed its shikiri.

Barbara had halted at the doorway. As she stood looking in her eyes fell on the mauve kimono with its silver camellias. It was the robe Harui had worn the first evening she came to her. If she had doubted all doubt was now gone.

But an instant she hesitated, then, with sudden resolution, knocked on the grill and stepped across the threshold.

The man who watched could not solve the puzzle, but in that instant the sick suspicion he had harbored became a cold and lifeless thing in his breast.

A great sense of shame rushed through him as he saw her gaze wander about the interior with its venerable of the foreign, to the disordered desk, the lounge and its litter of books, the photograph on the wall, the open panel with its champagne bottles. In her seen her, and was she hiding from her?

Suddenly she saw the man's cap and gauntlet in the corner. Her cheeks rushed into flame. She seemed to see Harui's innocent face smiling at her over the throbbing samisen and through its tones to hear again the echo of a ribald laugh before the gilded cages of the Yoshiwara. Something in her cried out against the inference.

All at once Barbara took an abrupt step forward. She was looking at the round glass lantern just outside the doorway, painted with three characters:

Font

She chilled as if other had been poured in her veins. The name they stood for had been her first lesson in Japanese which Harui had taught her. She snatched up one of the volumes from the chair. It was Lillienthal's "Conquest of the Air." She opened it to the title page.

Ware, watching, saw with surprise that she was trembling violently. She had grown pale to the lips. The book slipped from her fingers and crashed on to the tatami. It lay there, open as she had held it, and he saw what was written across the white leaf. It was Daunt's name.

His thought leaped as if at the click of a latch. Daunt's book! What was she thinking? The piteous pallor that swept her face like an icy wave answered him. Why she was there—her interest in this Japanese girl who fled from her—he could not guess. But it was clear that she had not known the house was Daunt's and that with the knowledge she was face to face with what must seem a damning complicity. Perhaps some hint of this reticent had come to her—how now gossip feathered his shafts—some covert allusion, some laughing outburst, to which her coming had now given such verity. Phil was the deus ex machina of the situation. His Japanese amour she was now laying at Daunt's door. All this flashed through his mind in an instant. He watched her intently.

Over Barbara was sweeping a hideous chaos of mocking voices, bits of recollection barbed with agony—the little house near Aoyama parade ground (the carriage had passed the great empty plaza a few moments ago) that he had kept from "sentiment" the house she had asked him to show her, when he had evaded the request. And Harui! A feeling of physical anguish like that of death came to her. A dull pain was in her temples, and the door seemed to be rising up with her toward the ceiling. Daunt? No, whose lips had laid on hers, whose father was in her bosom—it burned her flesh now like a live coal. "There has never been another woman to me, Barbara. There never will be!" The words seemed to launch themselves from the air, stinging like fiery javelins.

Behind the shikiri a world, malvolent clamor was shouting through Ware's brain. He stood alone with his temptation. What had he to do with Daunt or with her belief in him? She had accepted his own advances, beckoned him half around the world—for what? To discard him for this man whom she had known but a handful of days. Chance had arranged this misadventure. Was he to tell her the truth—and lose her? The key to the situation was in his hand. He had only to keep silence.

At that moment he felt crumple down in some crude gulf within the fabric of his self-esteem the high built structure of years. Something colder, formless and malignant came to sit on its riven foundations. A savage elation grew in him.

Suddenly a shikiri was flung aside. Harui stood there, her face deathly pale, her hands wrenching and tearing at her sleeves. She laughed, a high, gasping, unnatural treble.

"So-o-o, Ojo-San! You come make visiting, no?" The shrill voice rang through the silent room. "My new house now an' mos' bes' master. No more Christian! My bad—oh, verger bad Japan girl!" With another peal of laughter she pointed to the knot of her belt. It was tied in front.

Barbara ran down the garden path as if pursued. She stepped into the carriage blindly.

This, then, was the end. It came to her like the striking of a great bell. Tomorrow the streets would lie as vivid in the sunlight, the bugles would march as blithely, the bent pines would wave, the lotus pads in the moat glisten, the gorgeous peisha flash by. She alone would know that the sun had died in the blue heaven.

"Taka, Taka," she said and leaned back and closed her eyes.

Behind her Harui's laughter had broken suddenly. She rushed into the little sleeping room and threw herself on the tatami before the tiny image of Kwanon in a wild burst of sobbing.

Ware opened the shikiri softly and with noiseless step passed out of the house.

CHAPTER XXI

THE LADY OF THE MANY COLORED FACES.

THE spacious residence of the minister of marine that night was a maze of light. All social Tokyo would be at the ball in honor of the admiral and officers of the visiting squadron.

It was late when Daunt turned his steps thither through the fragrant evening. The deciphering of a voluminous telegram had kept him at the chancery till 11.

All that day he had worked with a delicious exhilaration rioting in his pulses. He had not seen Barbara, but her face had seemed always before him—quivering passionately as he had seen it in Ben-tan's cave, hued with daring softness as it had turned to his on the steps of the railway carriage. Tonight he was to see her. In fancy he could feel her slim hand on his sleeve as they danced—could see himself sitting with her in some ducal alcove sweet with plum blossoms—could hear her say—

Daunt had seen many such affairs where the blending of colors and sounds, the scintillant shifting forms, had been but a maze. Tonight, however, was wound in a glory. All these decorative people, this accented echo of laughter and music, existed only to form a kaleidoscopic setting for the one woman. He went to search for her with his handsome head erect, his shoulders square and a color in his face.

He passed through several rooms, revealing one oriental picture after another. In the last room the host stood with the visiting admiral and several ambassadors. He was a perfect type of the modern Japanese of affairs, a diplomatist as well as a seasoned admiral. He had been at Annapolis in 1875, and his wife was a graduate of Wellesley. He was one of the strongest of the powerful coterie which was shaping the destinies of new Japan.

Daunt greeted him and paused to chat awhile with his own chief and Mrs. Dandridge.

Daunt turned back, threaded the hall and entered the ballroom. There through the shifting crowd, over flashing uniforms and diamonded tiaras, he saw her. Beside her stood a little countess, one of the noted court beauties, lotus pale, bamboo-slender, in a kimono of Danjro blue, with woven flowers. In the clear radiance Barbara stood almost surrounded. Her white satin gown shimmered in the light, which caught like globes of fire in the gold passion flowers with which it was embroidered. A new sense of her beauty poured over him. He had always seemed lovely, but now her loveliness was touched with something removed and spiritual. In the blaze of light she looked as delicately pale as a moon dahlia, but a spot of color was on either cheek, and her eyes were very bright. Daunt stood still, feasting his gaze. He started when Patricia's fan tapped him arm.

"You're frightfully late," she said as her partner, the German charge, bowed himself away. "Father will give you a wigging if you don't look out."

"I saw him a few moments ago," he answered. "He didn't seem very fierce."

"Was he still looking at those spooky curios? I can't see what anybody wants such things for. I always feel like saying what Mark Twain's man said when they showed him the mummy: 'If you're got any nice fresh corpse trot him out.'"

Daunt's smile was a mechanism. She knew that he had come to listen. As she looked at his side face with her clear, kind eyes a shadow came to her own. Her loyal heart was troubled.
